

Teaching and Learning Board Report

Shana Olson
Director of Teaching & Learning

April 2026

The teaching and learning department looks to elevate the core values in all of our work:

Passionate:

Our Title I teachers from our three identified buildings were able to attend the Wisconsin Title I conference for two full days of learning from some of the nation's top educators and researchers. The first day included sessions with Dr. Matt Burns focused on intensifying interventions for students and Dr. Timothy Shanahan on teaching complex text. These sessions both supported and challenged the team's thinking, eliciting great conversations on how this learning can impact their classrooms and students. The second day was an amazing full day with Dr. Anita Archer, an expert in explicit instruction and student engagement. This experience will be instrumental in reviewing and enhancing our current practices in intervention. We look forward to sharing the learning with our literacy interventionists and planning how we might incorporate our learning into our everyday work.

Supportive:

We will have 10 student teachers this coming fall, from several of our partner colleges and universities. We are thankful to have so many teachers willing to host future educators. Many of our student teachers come back to our district as employees. We look forward to them being in classrooms across the district this fall!

Collaborative:

This month our Teacher Leadership and Compensation (TLC) committee met to review our plan and confirm procedures for evaluation and reflection for current Teacher Leaders. Additionally, as part of our learning work for the strategic plan, we reviewed other TLC plans to consider what we might learn from them in regards to structures, positions, and how programs are run. This led to some great considerations for the team to review and share with others as we continue with a review of our program.
